THE LATE SHOWS: 15 & 16 May 2015

The Holy Biscuit is partnering with Northumbria University's Think Physics project for an exhibition to coincide with the Late Shows. This show will be an artistic interpretation of the science behind the sun.

It takes 8 minutes 20 seconds for the light of the sun to reach the earth. Forming the basis of life on our planet, this effect has been recognized since prehistoric times.

Through art and science we will explore how the sun creates light and how we interact with it. Featuring work by artists Helen Schell, Sarah Davis, John Jo Murray and Emily Simpson, the show will come alive with exhibits by Think Physics.

This project is part of our programme to mark 2015 as the UN International Year of Light.
